

Today, we face a mighty Roman army. They are strong. But we are stronger.

Their weapons and their wealth will not protect them. They are no match for our fierce hearts, our enormous courage, our passion, and they never will be. You may die today, and I may die, but we will do so in good heart. If you find yourself at the tip of a Roman sword, you look into his eyes and laugh for he can never kill you. Shed one drop of blood on this land and you will live in this land forever. Here, with your ancestors reaching back into the past and with your children, stretching far into the future. They think they can attack our loved ones, steal our beautiful land and make us pay taxes for living on it. But they are wrong. We will make them pay!

Will the Romans break us down? We are part of one another. Always. Eternally. We cannot lose! We shall have our victory!

Technique	Key
Opening paragraph/statement introduces idea	Green
Rhetorical question	Yellow
Boudicca's opinion	Red
Strong/Emotive Adjectives	Blue
Powerful conclusion	Pink

Technique	Key
Opening paragraph/statement introduces idea	Green
Rhetorical question	Yellow
Boudicca's opinion	Red
Strong/Emotive Adjectives	Blue
Powerful conclusion	Pink

Technique	Key
Opening paragraph/statement introduces idea	Green
Rhetorical question	Yellow
Boudicca's opinion	Red
Strong/Emotive Adjectives	Blue
Powerful conclusion	Pink